

High School Math Teacher

Part-time Position (20-30 hours per week)

The Link School is seeking an imaginative, compassionate, and practiced classroom teacher to instruct high school Math classes beginning Fall 2025.

The Link School is a high school for students who are seeking an experiential education in an environment where Christian Science is lived and demonstrated on a daily basis. The purpose of the school is to help students "...find the indissoluble spiritual link which establishes man forever in the divine likeness" (Mary Baker Eddy).

As a teacher at The Link School, you will work with curious, kind students, each growing along their own trajectory; you will collaborate with talented teachers and dedicated residential staff; and you will draw connections between teaching content and the world outside of the classroom – all on our beautiful mountain-side campus in Buena Vista, Colorado. Between classes, you might find yourself leading a snowball fight, joining a lunchtime dance party, or diving into a powerful discussion about the meaning of stewardship.

Teachers at The Link School enjoy autonomy and the opportunity to implement creative ideas in their classrooms. At the same time, teachers are diligent, focused, prepared, and purpose-driven. The blend of creativity and professionalism makes for a rewarding workplace. Teachers receive ready support from attentive, present administrators. Additionally, teachers are actively encouraged to maintain work-life balance and inspiration for the classroom through paid prep periods and regular time off while students and program staff are on expeditions.

The Math teacher at The Link School is a vital member of our core teaching team. Math is taught in leveled classes that follow a standard high school progression. Class periods last 55 minutes Monday-Thursday, and 30 minutes on Friday.
