For parents searching for boys ranches in Des Moines, Iowa, Master's Ranch may be a good choice to help get a troubled boy back on track and motivated about his future again.

If your boy is rebellious, unmotivated, or struggling with anger, Master's Ranch may be better suited to helping him than other boys ranches in Des Moines, Iowa.

With 28 years of experience, the staff here at Master's Ranch knows intimately the difficulties and struggles that so often face parents of troubled teens. Although this boys ranch is not located in Des Moines, Iowa, we would be eager to get to know you and your son better in order to help you, just as we have helped many other families just like yours from Des Moines, Iowa and from many other cities.

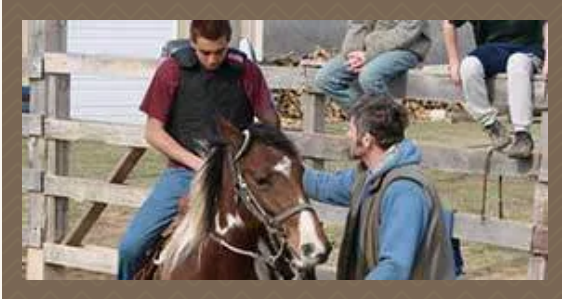

Most parents contact us because their boy is defiant, angry or hanging around with the wrong crowd. Or, perhaps his grades are slipping or he lacks motivation. We address and correct these issues, and more, by developing self-esteem, faith, respect, discipline and a work ethic. At this boys home, we can separate boys from distractions that keep them stuck in the problem and focus on nothing but the solution.

What sets Master's Ranch apart from boys ranches in Des Moines, Iowa.

What makes us different from many other boys ranches in Des Moines, Iowa is our emphasis upon creating a family-style atmosphere which we have seen is most likely to create changes in the boys' attitudes and behaviors. The boys will begin to view it as a home away from home where powerful transformation can occur through hard work and discipline. With this philosophy, Master's Ranch becomes a home for boys who may currently be missing their own. Upon this foundation, we have seen that boys will improve mentally, physically, and spiritually.

Our professionally trained therapists work with the boys in both group and individual settings, often in outdoor environments. The relaxed feel is most likely to encourage the openness and honesty required for the process. In addition to these more traditional therapy sessions, the boys will learn the therapeutic value of working on a ranch and caring for animals as a way to cope with anger or anxiety.

At Master's Ranch, troubled boys from places like Des Moines, Iowa are taught how to become young men with skills and assets that make them productive members of society, able to live on their own.

Doing this work on a ranch for boys is where the vocational aspect of Master's Ranch begins. This is just the beginning, however. The boys learn not only husbandry and ranch work, but also work with general contractors learning a wide array of skills. Master's Ranch is committed to not only taking care of the struggles the boys came in with, but also to building up young men armed with vital tools to be successful upon their reunification with their families and the workforce.

Teens who are enrolled at Master's Ranch and complete the curriculum will leave here as young men of character, prepared to face the world with morals, a strong work ethic, and a faith that will allow them to be successful just as God intended. Although we are not one of the boys ranches in Des Moines, Iowa, for the reasons given above and more, this program should be considered for your teen. Many boys just need an opportunity to rearrange their priorities in a setting like the one provided at Master's Ranch, dedicated entirely to their wellbeing.

This Christian ranch for boys may, for a variety of reasons, be a better fit for your boy than boys ranches in Des Moines, Iowa. We invite you to look through our website and call us today at (417) 938-4711 to find out more. Our boarding school admissions director is ready to personally listen to your family's situation and discuss how we can help.
