

North Carolina Boys, Pittsboro, NC

Is your child having trouble responding to structure and rules? Has his academic performance slipped, or does he suffer from low self-esteem? Three Springs' North Carolina Boys Program may be just the place for him - a place where he can learn to cope with peers and authority figures, a place where he can learn to respect the wants, needs and desires of others, a place where he can become a healthy, productive member of your family. Established in 1990 to serve boys ages 12 through 17, Three Springs of North Carolina combines outdoor treatment, experiential activities and an excellent private school to create an unparalleled environment in which your child will thrive. In addition to our full-time staff we have a multidisciplinary team of consulting professionals - social workers, nurses, teachers, mental health and substance abuse counselors and a psychiatrist/psychologist - who will combine their efforts to create a comprehensive treatment plan for your child.

This program offers our 48 students a unique combination of traditional psychiatric and psychological treatments along with experiential and adventure-based outdoor services. Your child will live and work with other students as a team in a structured outdoor campsite environment that he has helped design and build. As he and the other students continue improvement projects and maintenance of the site, they will learn a healthy pattern of living and cooperation.

Your child will continue his education at our on-site, private school in a custom-designed program that will include math, science, reading, language, social studies and experiential activities.

- State of North Carolina Department of Human Resources, Division of Facility Services
- North Carolina Nonpublic Special Education Program, Exceptional Children Division
- Joint Commission on the Accreditation of Healthcare Organization
- Association of Experiential Education (AEE)

