THREE SPRINGS

Who We Are

Often a short term (90 day) program can provide enormous benefits to children who are getting in trouble at home and with the law. The McIntosh Youth Development Center continually challenges boys with a rigorous physical training program coupled with traditional education, life skills training and a work program. This 168-bed juvenile facility was created through a contract with the State of Georgia Department of Juvenile Justice.

How We Help

Traditional military activities and regiment such as drill and ceremonies, completion of the confidence and leadership reaction courses and high standards of dress and appearance are a part of daily life at McIntosh. The development of self-discipline and judgment are enhanced by the integration of Three Springs' Positive Peer Culture program along with the strong elements of discipline and regimentation.
