Founded in 1898, Lyman Ward Military Academy is an all-male military boarding school for children in grades 6 through 12. The program is designed to foster good character and attitude through a traditional, well-rounded military education that testimonials indicate has fostered emotional maturity. They seem to work well with students that are floundering, rather than acting out.

President of Lyman Ward Military Academy, Colonel Albert W. Jenrette, MA, served two tours of duty in Vietnam prior to becoming a JROTC instructor at the Academy. He then served the British Army of the Rhine in Rheindahlen, Germany and was the Senior Army Advisor for the 63rd Army Reserve Command in Los Alamitos, California before retiring from the military. He worked for several years in the private sector before his appointment as President of the Academy in 2007. The program is accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Lyman Ward Military Academy uses "traditional values" based education with a focus in college preparatory education. A curriculum of academics, athletics, and leadership skills help prepare the students for later life through instilling discipline, honor, intellect, physical fitness, coordination, and responsibility. Athletic participation is considered a vital part of the total education and the program offers a variety of competitive sports. Students are also required to attend non-denominational church services on Sunday to encourage personal growth.

The campus is situated on 320 acres in rural Alabama. The rural setting provides opportunities for outdoor recreation such as fishing and camping. The campus also includes a recreational canteen area with billiards and table tennis and hosts other social events for the students' enjoyment.

Reality Ranch Military Camp is a para-military style correctional summer camp for boys ages 10 to 15. The program is intended to assist parents who want to correct minor behavioral issues or reinforce discipline in younger children before the behaviors become more serious. The camp also accepts young boys who have an interest in joining the military in the future.

Founder and Commandant J. Denton previously served in the United States Army both at home and abroad. His most recent position was as an Infantry Combat Platoon Sergeant. He is a certified EMT, Red Cross CPR and First Aid Instructor, a certified Combat Lifesaver, and a Trained Fitness Instructor. Reality Ranch Military Camp is licensed by the state of Arizona.

The program includes three main types of activities, military-style challenges and physical activities, life skills activities, and recreational pursuits. Utilizing a basic-training structure, participants experience a military-like atmosphere at an age appropriate level. Campers participate in military education including customs, history, behavior, and weaponry. Reality Ranch Military Camp seeks to promote emotional growth, maturity, life skills, exercise, healthy habits and accountability. Participants also have the opportunity to enjoy crafts, bivouacking, organized athletics and target practice activities.
